Title: Bind

Date: 1995

Media: Single-channel video/sound installation

Description:

Combination 13-inch color video monitor/VHS videocassette recorder, steel cable, book (Jacques Ellul, The Humiliation of the Word. Grand Rapids: Wm. B. Eerdmans, 1985), and one VHS tape (black-and-white; sound)

Dimensions variable

Edition of five and one artist's proof

Bind consists of a combined TV/VCR unit bound to an open book by steel cable. The book's pages are pressed against the monitor's screen, covering all but the very edge, where light is seen flickering to the rhythm of words spoken from the book. All silences between sentences, words and syllables have been truncated, creating a continuous "automated" reading by the monitor's "scan." The book, entitled Humiliation of the Word, by Jacques Ellul, discusses the effects of technology, images and television on the discourse of the mind, particularly the relationship between thought and speech.
