Description:

Locked Grooves (a technical term referring to the internal groove of a vinyl record, in the shape of a closed-loop, which blocks the arm of the turntable and its stylus, preventing it from entering the label area), a ten-channel video installation that uses small flat-screen displays showing faces of people wearing headphones. We don't know what they are hearing, but we imagine it, maybe we start listening as we observe the subtle changes in their behavior and emotions.
